

CCG College's 60th Anniversary - 2025

As you may already know, next year the Canadian Coast Guard College will celebrate its 60th anniversary on September 7, 2025. The planning team is well underway organizing various events and activities throughout the year to celebrate this remarkable milestone.

You may have also heard that there will be a name change from CCG College to CCG Academy coming in 2025. This is true – and here's why!

Over the last number of years, the College has evolved into much more than a post-secondary institution. Given the modernization of our training delivery and course development, including state-of-the-art technologies, the term "academy" better reflects the specialized, skills-based training we provide and aligns with our reputation for excellence in operational training with national and international partners.

We are currently working with a creative design team in HQ on a rebranding of the College to the Academy. Please note, this name change will not in any way affect the "Academy's" accreditations or certifications required for our programs. As with anything, this will be a process that will be worked upon over the course of the next year, and communication will be provided to the College community along the way.

For more information, you are invited to peruse the attached document that was presented last month by our Executive Director to CCG Management Board as an awareness piece. As mentioned, we are in the beginning phases of this transition and College Management Board will keep our community apprised of new developments.

Your patience and understanding are truly appreciated!
